Now available in a 90-minute and 45-minute format, the DDC Distracted Driving Online Course helps change driver’s risky behaviors and attitudes associated with cell phone use while driving. Both courses offer an engaging, interactive presentation that educates employees about the dangers and consequences of distracted driving.

The 90-minute version includes a comprehensive self-assessment profile which sets the pace for the course with appropriate scenarios, activities and content based on the individual’s responses and risk level. In addition, the full-length course provides companies the opportunity to include their corporate cell phone policy into the course with the purchase of 100 or more course registrations.

What Employees Learn:

- Benefits to changing attitudes and driving behaviors about distracted driving
- Science of distracted driving, cognitive distractions, and the myths about multitasking
- Personal costs, legal ramification, societal and corporate impact after an incident
- Strategies to avoid distracted driving

To order or for more information, contact Lisa Kons at 651-228-7330/800-444-9150 or lisa.kons@minnesotasafetycouncil.org.