Melissa Gill, Physical Therapist, On-Site Solutions, Maple Grove, MN; Casey Phillip, Safety Director, Tennant Company, Minneapolis, MN

When NOT to Train
We do a lot of training in safety, but training should really only be conducted to 1) comply with a regulation or 2) teach someone something they don’t know. Too often we use training as the automatic response to every safety issue. In this session we’ll discuss situations where training isn’t likely to be effective and alternatives to improve safety without wasting valuable time and resources.
